ABSTRACT

A digital data storing method is provided in which digital data whose content varies as the time elapses is partially encrypted for each predetermined period τ at a predetermined time interval T. The encryption is done for the ratio of the period τ of the encrypted part to the predetermined time interval T and period τ of the encrypted part to be sufficiently small. The digital data thus encrypted is stored.